Bill served as an officer in the New York City Police Department (NYPD) for 23 years, retiring in 1984 with the rank of Detective 2nd grade.

Bill was a lifelong resident of Palisades, NY. He served as a distinguished member of the NYPD Bomb Squad. His family and friends never knew when he might appear on the evening news, or the front page of a local newspaper, attempting to defuse a dangerous device. He then served as a Manager of Security Services at Consolidated Edison. Bill was also a member of the Sparkill Palisades Fire Department for over 45 years, where he also served as its commissioner.

Footnote about Bill – “Many summers were spent camping with the family around the Lake George area of NY, and most Saturdays during the fall were reserved for his favorite activity, tailgating at West Point and watching the Army Football Team.”
